

Andrew P. Kavulich
Executive Vice President
General Manager

December 17, 1999

To Whom It May Concern:

I enjoy writing a letter that documents the professional, cost-effective and courteous handling of a major project. This letter confirms those qualities exhibited by Kevin Bragg, president of Chrisanntha Construction and his staffers who were involved with our recent building expansion project in Canandaigua.

Although the construction schedule of Chrisanntha was dependent on the timely receipt of our architect drawings (delayed on certain items), the professional approach of Kevin Bragg and his site supervisors to overcome some delays and proceed with other items was impressive.

Many unforeseen issues developed that required adjustment to architectural drawings, changes to foundation plan, changes to interior layout, etc. Chrisanntha staffers also reacted to these changes in a professional and courteous manner.

Coming in on budget for a construction project is always the goal and suggestions from the construction firm to keep within that budget is always welcomed. Kevin Bragg made numerous suggestions to that effect on our project and it saved us tens of thousands of dollars during the project.

I have worked with Kevin Bragg on a few projects at our building in Canandaigua, in addition to our current expansion. I have enjoyed the interaction with him and the work ethic he has instilled in his staffers. The "can-do" attitude and ability they exhibited allow for much less stress in a major building project.

I feel very comfortable recommending Kevin Bragg and Chrisanntha Construction for any small or large construction projects

Andrew P. Kavulich
Executive Vice President
General Manager